

Adult literacy project

29-Dec-2015

The volunteers started with the very basic ABCD in Oriya and English. The volunteers were amazed that some of them had a very clear idea about the letters, alphabets and numbers. The women were so eager that they helped out the others who were a little behind and the session was very interactive and fun. Not only the alphabets, the women were taught to count using basic arithmetic- addition and subtraction. They were given day-to-day life objects to help them imagine and make the counting easier. Using laptops, the volunteers helped the women to visualize everything, how the scriptures were written and the manner in which they were to be spelled. The women showed their interests every minute and some of them asked for more. Lastly they were given a brief idea about health and hygiene, how to manage their lives and maintain cleanliness, for that would prevent a whole lot of diseases from spreading.
