26-Dec-2015

The volunteers commenced their journey from KIIT campus for their destination, Biotech village in the morning. The day was cloudy with gentle breeze that complemented the mood of the volunteers. They had a clear objective of their visit outlined in their mind. Their purpose was to interact with them to get an insight to their day to day problems and offer simple practical solutions for them. The volunteers also had on their agenda to guide the children on the academic front as well as to develop their creativity through teaching utility craft from waste or available material and drawing. The method was clearly play way, primarily to make them comfortable and also gain the confidence of the villagers.
