

PROJECT PRAGATI: “STEPPING TOGETHER TO MAKE A BETTER WORLD”

Duration :2 hrs

Frequency :Weekly

Visit Date : 13 November 2019

Team Pragati had its first visit at saraswati shishu vidya mandir, which is approx 2km from KIIT UNIVERSITY campus 6. “Education is the most powerful weapon which we can use to change the world”. Keeping this in mind, NSS Pragati has been visiting schools nearby in Bhubaneswar for enlightening kids to find their paths in which they can exhale the most and achieve success with flying colours. NSS Pragati has been one of the top projects of NSS SCE. Being one of the most frequently visiting groups, Pragati is still maintaining its consistency by taking small steps for imparting education to the little ones. That being said, NSS Pragati presents their first report describing their first visit. The team departed from kiit campus at 2:30 pm heading to the school, guided by the 3rd year volunteers and reached there by 2:50. On reaching the school the 2nd year volunteers were divided into groups of 4 consisting of three members. Each group was headed with at most one 3rd year volunteer. Heading on to the classes, the volunteers took up the responsibility of classes 4 to 7.

The newly recruited 2nd years started the visit by introducing themselves to the students and continued their warm interaction with the students so that they can have the basic idea on how much the students of the school knew about the world of computer. It is very rightly said by Martin Luther King Jr “You cannot change the world but you can make a difference.” With this spirit, the volunteers started giving basic knowledge about computer’s input and output devices, hardware and software, where we can use computers in daily life, also the volunteers tried to teach how to write their names in MS Word. The newly recruited 2nd year were amazed by seeing the willingness that the children showed in order to study a new thing apart from their daily routine. After giving basic knowledge about computer the volunteers tried to have some fun sessions with the students. They taught them how to draw shapes and made them colour in MS Paint. In order to get more interactive with the children the team also showed informative animated video so that the students can grasp the subject easily.

Towards the end the volunteers proceeded with the interactive sessions with watching cartoons along with the students in order to spend a fun time just to break the stress of long school hours. The session ended around 4.30 pm. The volunteers got a great response from the students, they were overwhelmed by the enthusiasm that was shown by the students there and had a wonderful experience in their first official visit of project Pragati.

Rightly quoted by Robert Frost "Education is the ability to listen to almost anything without losing your temper or your self confidence". With this spirit the volunteers started giving basic knowledge about computer's memory where we told them about the types of memory-primary and secondary memory and also the sub-parts to them like RAM, ROM and HDD, SSD, floppy disc respectively and how we can use computers in daily life,also the volunteers tried to teach how to write their names and change their font size and style. The session ended around 4.30 pm. Like its said “True happiness comes only by making others happy”,so this was the small effort made by team pragati to make the world more beautiful place to live in. We are looking forward for more visits so that we can share more knowledge about computer and will always try to spread love wherever we go as a team,so that we can set an example for future volunteers and make a difference.

After giving basic knowledge about computer the volunteers tried to have some fun sessions with the students. They taught them about power point presentation, what are its uses. They were taught how to add pictures, tables or use text tools, applying transitions and animations, etc. In order to get more interactive with the children volunteers let children write their names using word art for practice purpose. Towards the end the volunteers proceeded with the interactive sessions where they took a quiz and asked questions from what they had taught for which they received great response. The classes ended with watching cartoons along with the students in order to spend a fun time just to break the stress of long school hours. Students were extremely happy which in turn made the team feel content and satisfied with our efforts. The session ended around 1.30 pm. The volunteers got a great response from the students, they were overwhelmed by the enthusiasm that was shown by the students there and had a wonderful experience in their third official visit of project Pragati.
