

RAKHI CELEBRATION
ORGANISED BY:- NSS SOEE
DATE:-15TH AUGUST 2019(3 HOURS)

They always stood before us, sacrificing everything for us. We slept and we celebrated festivals because we knew you were there, always. What can be more melancholic for someone than to celebrate Raksha Bandhan with the jawans.

The word ‘Raksha Bandhan’ implies “a bond of protection”. During this festival, the sisters tie a thread of rakhi on their brother’s wrist. In return, brothers promise to protect their sisters for life. But there are some unsung heroes, the Indian soldiers (men of steel) deployed at the border. They selflessly devoted their lives to protect the entire nation. You may not share a blood relation with these soldiers. But they are like unrelated brothers who safeguard the nation. In freezing cold temperatures and scorching heat – they defy all adversities to make sure the rest of the nation can sleep in peace. And additionally, far from their homes, these soldiers put their lives at risk for the sake of their country. They make a huge difference to our lives without actually caring about their own.

On the year of 2019, Raksha Bandhan and Independence Day were going to be celebrated on the same day, the 15th of August, which calls for double celebrations. Thus, it is a great opportunity to combine and rejoice two different celebrations in a unique way. The beautiful festival of Raksha Bandhan always manages to bring siblings together. It allows them to bond over memories, sweets and gifts. so, it will be extra special for sisters whose brothers are posted in the armed forces. But let's not forget the fact that the huge responsibility of protecting the nation stops our soldiers from celebrating this festival with their siblings and family members.

Take it as an opportunity to make a difference on the day of independence day we the volunteers of Project Lakshya celebrated Raksha Bandhan with the jawans of 120 Battalion Bihar Regiment.

We all spent the day with them. It was a huge honour and pleasure for us to do something for those unsung heroes who protect us everyday without any excuse.
