Volunteers from project Aarogya visited Shikharchandi slums, Bhubaneswar on 1st February, 2020, at 8:45am. The location is around 10 minutes away from the campus of KIIT university. A team consisting of 21 members from project Aarogya left for the destination at around 8:45am on foot. It was again a new learning experience for all the members of the project.

The aim of this visit to slum area was to spread awareness about the topic “Corona Virus & Bird Flu”. India is at a great risk of this disease, so it is the responsibility of the fellow citizens to be aware of this situation and to act wisely at the hour of crisis. We reached the destination at 9:00am and all the groups took different lanes to finish the task on time. To make it a bit more clear about the symptoms and precautions, we showed them PowerPoint presentation prepared by the volunteers. After finishing the task, we gathered at a common point of Shikharchandi slum and asked all the children to join us initially. We played Stapu with them in which they were asked to skip the block which had “Corona Virus & Bird Flu” written on it. We left the place by 11:00am.

In short, this visit was very much needed for the people of the slum as well as the volunteers to gain more knowledge. It was a joyous day because of the presence of the little kids present there who didn't fail to bring a smile on our face by showing their enthusiasm in whatever we planned for them. Thank you to all the seniors for helping and guiding us so well. Also, to each volunteer for cooperating and participating wholeheartedly to make it a huge success.
